

Homework

Hey, you.

Yes, you - I'm talking to you.

What?

You can't see me? What do you mean you can't see me?
You're looking straight at me!

Oh - I get it - just because I'm not human - well you assume... I can't talk. Yes, I've met people like you before. You're thinking that this is all a joke and you can't actually be having a conversation with a piece of paper. Well, you're wrong! So get over it already.

What do you mean I've got an attitude problem?

No, I haven't!

It's you that's got the attitude problem - a bad attitude when it comes to paper that is.

Look - I'm not happy. To put it simply - you keep wasting it. I've seen you - drawing a little picture or writing a few lines and then throwing it away. You'd think that paper grew on trees!

Just think what we could have been. Together we could have created the next best-selling novel or the next masterpiece to challenge that... Leonardo da Vinci - whoever he is.

So - next time you think about throwing me away - think twice - otherwise there'll be trouble - and don't say I didn't warn you.

Imagine that an everyday object could talk. What would it say?